(Character/Critical)

Hal had no idea what to get his sister for her birthday. She had all the toys she needed. So he went to ask her what she wanted.

He opened the door to her room, but Carla was not there. Hal was amazed at the terrible mess! There were school papers and stacks of books on the rug. You could not walk in the room. All the toys were lying about. The bed had not been made in a week.

Suddenly, Hal got an idea. He put all the toys in a box. He picked up all the papers and books. He dusted, mopped, and made the bed.

Then he hung this banner above her bed: Happy Birthday, Carla!
